Doctors of Osteopathic Medicine, or DOs, make up one of the fastest-growing segments of the healthcare profession. DOs are fully licensed physicians who practice in all areas of medicine, but they practice health care differently, emphasizing a whole-person approach to care. They practice using the latest science and technology, but also consider options to complement pharmaceuticals and surgery.

There are currently more than 140,000 DOs in the U.S., with more than half that number practicing in primary care. What began as a small profession with a distinctive philosophy has grown to become a critical component of the nation’s health care system.

GROWTH IN THE PROFESSION
The osteopathic medical profession is positioned to continue growing exponentially. Over the past three decades, the total number of DOs and osteopathic medical students has more than quadrupled to reach 186,871 in 2023.

7,800+ New osteopathic physicians joined the health care workforce in Spring 2023.

148,829 Osteopathic physicians in the U.S.

38,042 Osteopathic medical students in the U.S.

TOTAL DOs IN THE U.S.
In 2023, the total number of osteopathic physicians in the U.S. reached almost 149,000—a 30% increase over the past five years.

DOs IN PRIMARY CARE SPECIALTIES
Though DOs bring their distinctive approach to every field and specialty across the landscape of medicine, the osteopathic profession plays a major role in meeting the nation’s primary care workforce needs.

Family Medicine

Internal Medicine

Pediatrics and Adolescent Medicine

TOP 5 NON-PRIMARY CARE SPECIALTIES
Over the past two decades, the number of DOs choosing to pursue non-primary care specialties has increased significantly, leading to the expansion of osteopathic principles and practice across the full range of medicine.

Today, more than ever before, 25% of all U.S. medical students are pursuing careers in osteopathic medicine. The number of osteopathic medical schools have more than doubled over the past two decades. During the 2023-24 academic year, the AOA’s Commission on Osteopathic College Accreditation (COCA) will accredit 40 colleges of osteopathic medicine offering instruction at 65 locations to more than 38,000 medical students.
ABOUT AOA

Advancing the distinctive philosophy and practice of osteopathic medicine, AOA represents more than 186,000 osteopathic physicians and medical students across the U.S. As the primary certifying body for DOs and the accrediting agency for all osteopathic medical schools, the AOA works to accentuate the distinctiveness of osteopathic principles and the diversity of the profession. In addition to promoting public health and encouraging scientific research, the AOA advocates at the state and federal levels on issues that affect DOs, osteopathic medical students, and patients.
